Administrative Law

With the development of the Chinese administrative law system and continuing establishment and improvement of the dispute resolution system, administrative litigation cases in China have shown a significant growth trend in recent years.

JunHe is one of the top law firms in China and is aware of the growing needs for clients in the area of administrative law. For years, JunHe has developed its professional capabilities and has provided administrative law-related legal services to many domestic and foreign clients. This includes conducting legislation research and assessment, advising on administrative decisions, advising on administration investigations, and representing clients in administrative reconsideration proceedings and administrative lawsuits. JunHe has accumulated vast practical experience in the area. Through the integration of high-quality resources and key input from both inside and outside the firm, JunHe has formed a professional team consisting of administrative law lawyers and consultants that has won the trust and praise of its clients. The team can provide clients with first-class legal services in the field of administrative law.

Legal Team

JunHe's Administrative Law Team is composed of experts, scholars, senior administrative trial experts and senior lawyers with solid administrative and legal backgrounds and rich practical experience. All of our lawyers have received a solid legal education either in China or overseas and have outstanding knowledge in administrative law and administrative procedure law, both locally and overseas. The business area involves administrative reconsideration, litigation, legislation, and management and focuses on administrative legislation, management behavior and dispute resolution. The team provides professional and quality administrative legal services and opinions to government and enterprises, promotes the Rule by Law, and assists its clients to eliminate hidden troubles and mitigate losses. They secure the legal rights and interests of their clients with protection, and are highly recognized by their valued clients.

Taking advantage of JunHe's platform, JunHe's Administrative Law Team can allocate the best resources (including contacting expert consultants, media public relations, handling government relations, etc.) within the scope of the firm, so that the clients benefit from JunHe's integrated platform. The Administrative Law Team implements a close teamwork

JunHe, founded in Beijing in 1989, is one of the first private partnership law firms in China. Since its establishment, JunHe has grown to be one of the largest and most recognized Chinese law firms. The firm has twelve offices around the world and a team comprised of more than 1070 professionals, including over 320 partners and legal counsel, as well as over 750 associates and legal translators.

The team (JunHe) has rich project experience, strong professional ability, high coordination and the ability to understand our business.
