Professional Experience

Ms. Yi is a partner at JunHe and currently practices at our Shanghai office. Prior to joining JunHe, Ms. Yi was a senior partner at Shanghai Allbright Law offices.

Ms. Yi's areas of expertise are infrastructure, project finance, banking and ABS.

In the infrastructure area, Ms. Yi was one of the first lawyers to provide legal services for infrastructure development in China, and she maintains a leading position in this area. In her more than a decade's legal practice, she has led and participated in numerous national or municipal key infrastructure projects of various kinds, provided eminent legal services for large State-owned enterprises, private investment groups and multinational corporations, and has accumulated considerable experience in the development and construction of urban rail transit, bridges, highways, natural gas, power plants and construction. She also has extensive experience in the financing, development and construction of infrastructure and industrial projects.

In the banking area, Ms. Yi provides legal services for domestic and foreign banks in respect of credit facilities, compliance, and disposition of non-performing loans. She has provided legal services to non-banking financing institutions, such as trust companies, asset management companies, fund companies and securities companies in respect to various trust products and wealth management products.

In the ABS area, Ms. Yi provides legal services for the securitization of bank credit assets and enterprise assets in respect to legal due diligence investigations, transaction structure and designing legal documents. She has experience in personal accumulation housing fund loans, construction receivables, BT buyback receivables, export rebate receivables, and rental receivables.

Ms. Yi is versed in legislation and government policies in the areas of infrastructure, banking and finance as well as project finance and has experience in transaction structure design. She also has profound and solid professional skills in legal documentation as well as practical experience in these areas. Ms. Yi is an expert in providing accurate legal services to clients from her unique perspective, always combining legal doctrines and the client's commercial objectives.
